

Subscription Agents

Welcome and thank you for your interest and support of NCTM journals. NCTM is the world's largest mathematics education organization throughout the United States and Canada. We are dedicated to developing and maintaining strong, mutually-beneficial relationships with our agency partners.

Orders must include the following information for each recipient: Institution name, reference number (if available), full mailing address (either direct ship or reship), and email address (for IP address management). If renewing with a change of address, please provide the address used with last year's order and the reference number used the previous year (if applicable). This information helps us avoid duplicate or missing subscriptions and the resultant disruptions in service to your clients.

Our Journals

Our journals provide quality, cutting-edge information for use teachers, principals, administrators, math coaches, teacher educators and other mathematics education professionals. We publish three scholarly journals in the subject areas of current practices in mathematics education, important research questions and issues in mathematics education; and preparation and professional development of pre-K-12 pre-service and in-service teachers of mathematics.
